Track Listing

they say time is a river and you can never step in the same river twice. it's all gonna change, but what came before shapes what comes after. there are certain people who seem to be in both places at once.

johnny nicholas has played music and rambled with some of the most artistically powerful individuals of the american 20th century.

just to name a few... big walter horton, mississippi fred maddowell, nathan abshire, lightnin' slim, s.p. leary, lazy lester, snooky pryor, robert jr. lockwood and johnny shines.

the last two gentlemen both learned some of their guitar playing directly from robert johnson and johnny learned directly from them. think about that for a moment.

music, myths, trains and rivers. they're all a journey in the individual sense and in the greater continuum. the songs and performances on johnny's new record are part of these age old paths. there's no way that they couldn't be, with the life he's led and the people he's known.

from the opening call of the wild, on the track "moonlight train" to the album's gentle closer 'fresh air' this collection of songs is a story that only one person could tell.

as I said there are people who seem to stand in two places at once. where they are now and where it all began. with this piece of work, johnny elevates this notion.

destroy the illusion of time and live in the truths that spoke to you as a child. the sounds of the summer night, the train whistle and the open tuned guitar. surely you are there as much as you are here.
